folds of her soit white dross.

But though the pretty head was hid upon the dimpled arms, and the starry eyes were sending forth floods of hiter lears—tens of repentance and sorrow—Gladys was not atom. Etholbert had paused where the path turned into the readele to plack a rise, that he might have some memoral or matter have trained at the rise, that he might have some mem-ento, no matter how tragile, of the happy hours he had spent at Briston Villa. Lacking lack has he stood there he had seen Gludys sout herself upon the rustle bench, and noticed her dejections and grief. Quickly rema-ing his steps he stood by her side, and saw the litherome form convulsed with sobs, saw that she was siding upon one foot in a very agony of despair.

The Difference in Hugging.

An Eastern paper, to encourage hugging in the locality in which it is published says: "A Wisconsin man, while hugging his girl of an eyening, received a telegram stating that he had falten helr to a fortune." The Eastern paper is right in its efforts to stimulate a tealthy, sentiment in favor of lugging, but it does wrong to hold out such inducements, as it will not be one time in 10,000 that a man, while hugging a girl, will receive such a dispatch bound in leather from the girl's lather, which will inform him girl's lather, which will inform him that he has talten over a fence, end Is helr to a lane buck. There should he no money consideration in a case of hugging, end no hope of falling heir to anything. It is formate enough to a man to have a girl to hug. ling-ging one never become what it should be, our great national recreation and enjoyment. our plenle, as it were, un til eli thoughts of outside matters le eliminsted from it, and the hugging is simply dooe, for instence, because there is a good opportunity, and no one to say may. The difference in higging cen readily be seen by those who have done a little of it themselves, if they go to a theater and watch the getter sort servers. watch the actors end actresses it la not once in a lumined times that hugging on the stage is done because both parties like it, but is always deno for money, at so much a week and wardrobe furnished-

wardrobe furnished—
The actor comes up to the scratch like a lired man, and puts his arm arround the ectress as though he was holding up a tobacco sign, and the actress sinles e two-lor-squarier smile and looks as though she was taking pills. We have often seen a couple of lovers in the audience, who probebly know selentific hingging when they see it, look at this stage hingging and curl up their lips with soors, and look at each other as much scorn, and look at each other as much ns to say: "If it was on the stage playing that seene, we would just break the andienee all up." Occasionally a couple of stage lovers do nubend themselves and get in a hing or two that break a corset string, but in these eases one or the other blushes ands looks around at the wing to see whether the actor's wife or the actres's husband is looking.
